ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF RISK

I recognize that:

- This trip may require an attitude and approach different from other activities I have been involved with.
- The nature of the risks may be different to those, which I am familiar with.
- There are certain inherent risks that remain.

Signature of Participant _____ Date _____

CampOUT! would like you to read the following carefully as it may affect your safety and the safety of others going on this trip. Once you have read it please sign the bottom of the form as an indication that you have read and understood it and return it to us. We have taken all reasonable steps to provide you with the level of care and assurances of safety appropriate to these activities. However, you should be aware that certain inherent risks remain which are integral to the activity, and which cannot be eliminated without destroying the uniqueness of the activities.

Amongst other things, some of these risks can contribute to:

- The loss or damage of personal clothing or equipment
- Feelings of discomfort, fear and apprehension, or even (as well as feelings of belonging, connection, and hope)
- Accidental injury, illness, or trauma, which in extreme cases may result in death.

The level of real (as opposed to apparent) risk associated with the activities at CampOUT! is very low. However, the type of risks may be something with which you are not familiar. The level of risk is generally no greater than that associated with, for example, the normal play of an average person, or that associated with a person or youth undertaking recreational activities appropriate to their ability, fitness, age, etc.

Things you may encounter include, but may not be limited to:

Rough or rugged terrain. The camp has forested areas and some rough terrain. If you are only used to footpaths, tarmac surfaces, and gentle inclines, etc., this may come as a bit of a surprise by putting greater strain on joints and muscles than you are used to.

Physical effort. Camp involves physical effort that at times may be more than you are used to. This may involve stamina or physical strength. If you have medical conditions or injuries, past or present, which may make some activities difficult, you should make us aware of them. Rest assured however, that we could accommodate almost anyone provided we know about the condition.

Animals. The camp is on an island and wild animals are few and far between. It is a wilderness setting though and campers will be given instruction on how they can be responsible users of the wilderness. There are no bears on the island; however deer and raccoons are in abundance and we do our best to discourage the raccoons by keeping our garbage and food well out of reach and to leave the deer alone. Animals generally tend to steer clear of human activity.

Water activities. All normal and appropriate precautions will be taken, such as the use of buoyancy aids when appropriate. However, some situations may become stressful for some people. If you (the participant) have an unusual aversion to water you should let that be known to us, although the ability to swim is NOT a requirement. All swim activities are optional. Swim lessons may be available.

Transportation. Getting to the camp site requires transportation via water taxi from horseshoe bay. Accidents are very rare but can happen and can be fatal. We do our best to minimize accidents by hiring a high quality water taxi service to transport us.

Canoeing. No participants are allowed in any water without direct supervision from staff. There is potential for a canoe to tip over because of poor distribution, paddling strokes or unstable water which could cause participants to become wet and/or cold and/or anxious. Prior to any canoeing, participants will need to be taught water safety procedures.

Slips and trips. This is the most common type of accident throughout society. We will endeavor to ensure that the consequences of such a slip are not serious but you should be aware that due to the rugged environment, the likelihood of falling over or slipping is likely to be greater than you are used to.

CampOUT! has clear obligations and we take these very seriously. However, we will be expecting participants to contribute to their own and each other's safety.
